ease your weary feet.

The other verses

2 Enter but with a serious thought,
Consider who is near
This is a consecrated spot,
The Lord is present here!

3 A question of the utmost weight,
While reading, meets your eye;
May conscience witness to your state,
And give a true reply!

4 Is Jesus to your heart revealed,
As full of truth and grace?
And is his name your hope and shield,
Your rest and hiding place?

5 If so, for all events prepared,
Whatever storms may rise,
He, whom you love, wilt safely guard,
And guide you to the skies.

6 No burning sun, or storm, or rain,
Will there your peace annoy;
No sin, temptation, grief, or pain,
Intrude to damp your joy.

7 But if his name you have not known,
Oh, seek him while you may!
Lest you should meet his aweful frown,
In that approaching day.

8 When the avenging Judge you see,
With terrors on his brow;
Where can you hide, or whither flee,
If you reject him now?
