ever it must lie.

The other verses

2 "No more, on earth no more,
Shall we behold that face;
Within the mournful halls of death
Must be its dwelling-place.

3 "No more, on earth no more,
Shall those dear lips be heard;
Cold silence there hath fixed its seal,
Breathed is their latest word."

4 'Tis so fond Nature mourns
Affection's broken ties;
But Faith stands forth, she points on high,
Serenely she replies: —

5 "No more, in heaven no more,
That eye is dim with tears;
But bright, and brighter still, the scene
Before its view appears.

6 "No more, in heaven no more,
That face a shadow bears;
But looks of light, born of a bliss
Unknown to earth, it wears.

7 "No more, in heaven no more,
That voice is faint with pain;
It mingles with angelic bands,
In their enraptured strain.

8 "No more, in heaven no more,
The parting grief is known;
But love has all eternity
To look through as its own."
